Myles specialises in intellectual property matters with an emphasis on litigation. His practice covers the full range of intellectual property rights from copyright and trade mark disputes for film and television production companies through to high-tech patent litigation for multinational telecoms companies. Myles is also part of Bristows' competition department with experience of handling competition disputes before the UK courts and the European Commission. His work within this department has given him considerable experience in the interface between IPRs and anti-trust issues.

Myles' post-doctoral level engineering training particularly suits him to the more technically demanding cases within his patent practice. Recent cases within this practice have focused on the computing, telecoms and biometrics sectors. Outside of that practice, Myles' clients come from diverse sectors; they include shampoo producers, the aerospace industry, computer games platform producers and globally based automobile manufacturers.

Myles is head of Bristows' Computer Games and Media group.

Myles is a qualified Solicitor-Advocate with full rights of audience before all the UK's civil courts. He is a member of AIPPI and EPLAW.
