Practice

Bob Goldman's 38-year career has centered on trial and appellate work in U.S. Courts nationwide in complex intellectual property matters. He has tried cases on technologies ranging from transgenic mice to pharmaceuticals to computer software and hardware to medical devices to photographic systems and postage meters. He has also consulted on and helped to coordinate multinational IP enforcement efforts for the firm's clients. He is a member of the New York and California bars. He retired as a partner at Ropes & Gray in January 2016.
